

Open Day for College of Business Administration and College of Law Students

As part of Al Falah University activities for the Second Semester, the College of Business Administration and the College of Law in collaboration with Student Affairs Unit organized an Open Day to identify the scientific and academic needs of the students and to motivate and to encourage excellence in their academic pursuits.

Prof. Khalifa Jaber, Dean of the College of Business Administration stated during the meet the role played by the university in providing an appropriate educational and academic environment for students to develop their abilities, knowledge, deepen their understanding of their responsibilities for and affiliation to their homeland.

For his part, Dr. Mohammed Desouki, Dean of the College of Law added the university's responsibility in the educational and scientific overall development in addition to seeking to participate in the formulation of a modern and sophisticated generation capable of facing the challenges of the future.

A number of faculty members from the College of Business Administration and the College of Law participated in the open day to enhance the positive educational performance of the university and provide a progressive atmosphere for the students.

For more Visit: <https://bit.ly/2MA1gt4>

Tags: Featured News